Ptomaine Poisoning

West main street was a scene of great excitement last week brought about by the accidental poisoning of the families of Mr. B. H. Luxon and Mr. L. B. Weisenburg. Mr. Luxon and the children had been in attendance at Sunday school when her little daughter complained of not feeling well. Mrs. Luxon sent her on home intending to follow in a moment. She was also taken ill and on going home found the rest of the family complaining. A physician was called and by prompt and heroic work the lives of this family were saved. At the same time the family of Mr. Weisenburg, a neighbor, was similarly afflicted and physicians were summoned and succeeded in relieving their distress.

Mr. B. H. Luxon was in great danger and had a narrow call for his life. He is now out of danger and is on the highway to recovery.

While the two families are neighbors they had not partaken of anything in common except their milk comes from the same supply and it is supposed that the poison came from this source; but this is purely speculative. There has not been any trouble before nor since from this source.

The many friends of the two families are rejoicing that the matter ended no worse.

French troops. Clashes between outposts Bombardment of a Russian Baltic port by a German warship.

The above are striking features of the war news. The most important battle involving Russians and Germans seems to have been prior to the occupation of Kalsz, Russian Poland, by German Uhlans. These are the troops that had been reported annihilated. The bombardment of Libau, Russia, is officially confirmed. Reports continue of firing in the North sea, but there is no official news of a sea battle. Un-Great Britain stands pledged to maintain Belgium's neutrality.

EFFICIENCY IS WATCHWORD. Popular sentiment without doubt heartily approves of the order issued by the secretary of the navy prohibiting the use of alcoholic beverages by officers on naval vessels and at shore stations. To quote the Chicago Tribune: "There is only one intelligent opinion as to the orderit is wise." Considered from the standpoint of efficiency alone, the order commends itself as a patriotic and a statesmanlike action. As the Journal of the American Medical Association points out in this connection, officers as well as enlisted men on a modern warship "need not only personal courage, but also absolute steadiness of nerve, clearness of vision and fine muscular co-ordination. All these things modern physiology has shown to be impaired by even small amounts of alcohol."

Surgeon General Braisted has full knowledge of the latest findings of medical science concerning the nasummer conditions so far as warmth ture and effect of alcohol, and his recis concerned. The cold is valued as ommendation to Secretary Daniels an aid to good appetites and heavy was in line with the demands of the feeding, but the aim is to supply them times. "In the next naval war vicwith all the food elements they would tory will belong to that nation which get in summer and enough to take care can show the smallest consumption of alcohol," said Emperor William.

Not only in the navy, but in the army and in all the departments of government with their modern high pressure responsibilities is there increasing urgency for efficiency in officers and in men. Alcohol and government machinery don't go well to-

DRUNKENNESS IN EUROPE.

"No drunkenness in the beer-drinking, light wine-drinking countries of Europe," the anti-temperance people tell us. We refer them to statistics recently given to the public by Dr. Walter Kern of the Institute for Pathological Anatomy in Vienna. "For two years [at Doctor Kern's request] death attests in the General hospital, Vienna, were marked by the attending physicians with the statement as to whether the patient hapcourse, the report which came in as a consequence of this inquiry was far However, after all else has been said below the reality. Many patients, who ertheless the conclusion was serious enough. In all, 4,130 cases were observed. Of the adult males 8.39 per cent were of a certainty drunkards. In other words, every eleventh or twelfth man dying in the General hospital, Vienna, is a drunkard."

FACTOR IN PAUPERISM.

"A great weight of evidence indicates drink as the most potent and universal factor in bringing about pauperism. Some witnesses also indicate gambling as a serious and growing cause. But the Thoughtful Mother refused to Listen to these Sneers. "I have Made a Study of These Matters," she said, "and I have Observed that your Efforts are Put Forth at the Wrong Time. You Entertain young Men at Summer Places, where Competition is far Too Keen, and in the Winter Season, when Men are far Too Busy. I have a Better Plan."

In Accordance with this Plan, she did Not go Away for the Summer, but Stayed in Town. Toward the end of August she Invited the Eligible Young Man to Dinner. He Accepted eagerly, for he had been Living in Restaurants, and Depending largely upon Vaudeville for his Entertainment. Forget Personal Mistakes. l's yesterday held one chapter he to forget. It was a black mark across the page of his life's book. Tradition says Paul always observed the anniversary of Stephen's murder. That past brought distress and torment. Instead of a place of refuge, a tower, it became a tomb, hideous and horrid. Is your memory a torment, a hindrance? Have you in youth betrayed honor, soiled a good name, lost a golden opportunity? Did you refuse knowledge, "bull headed," make blunders that cannot be retrieved? Have you sinned against the body, drained away precious nerve force and now find life's reservoir dry, bringing days of bitterness and nights of anguish? Poor Heinrich Heine on bis "mattress grave" hears of a German city celebrating his birthday, maiden crowning his marble bust with laurels. "God's mockery weighs heavy on me. Would I were dead! When in the spring of 1911 a meeting was held to consider the advisability of forming an organization which should do for girls what the boy scouts were doing for boys the promoters never dreamed that the organization which was brought about-the Campfire Girls-would grow to such splendid proportions and would present such fine possibilities. The Campfire Girl movement today is one of the big things of the country. Among those active in the initial movement were William Chaucey Langdon, Mrs. Charles H. Farnsworth, Dr. and Mrs. Luther H. Gulick, Professor Mary Schenck Woolman, Dr. Anna Brown, Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, Lee F. Hammer, James E. West, Mrs. Augustus Traut and Miss Lina Beard.

Preliminary work was done during the summer and fall. During the following winter a manual was prepared, funds were secured and an organization created and offices opened. It was publicly announced on March 17, 1912; up to Dec. 1, 1913, 4,041 guardians had been appointed, over 60,000 girls enrolled and campfires started in every state and territory in the Union. The budget for 1913 was $33.393. The following persons have been mainly responsible for financial sup-

The organization is primarily related to home and social life, hence it should usually consist of girls of about the same age, who naturally belong together, whose homes are near one another and who like one another. The best results are secured by having the things in His farewell messages to this unbelieving nation. Most of them are recorded by Matthew, Mark and Luke, but some by Matthew only. This He loves the whole world, and "whosoever" means any one anywhere in the wide world (John iii. 16). He chose Israel to be a peculiar treasure unto Him above all people, He separated them from all people to be His inheritance, He brought them unto Himself that they might be a people near to Him, and He never dealt so with any other nation. He did this for them that through them other nations might learn to know Him for their good (Ex. xix, 4, 5; 11 Sam. vii. 22-24; 1 Kings viii, 53; Ps. exlvii, 20; exlviii, 14; Isa. Ixiii, 11-14.) Israel being set aside for an age, He is gathering from all the nations the willing whosoevers to be a peculiar people unto Himself that through them the world may believe and know Him (Tit. ii, 14; John xvii, 21, 23). The church, these called out ones, is failing as Israel failed, but He No. 31—Cincinnati to Atlanta, arrives and Sidney Winkler, Coroner His time and in His way there shall be seen on earth the consummation of His eternal purpose in a kingdom of righteousness and peace which shall never end.

His dealings with Israel and their treatment of Him were written for our benefit that we might avoid their failures and bear better fruit than they did (I Cor. x, 6-12; Rom. xv, 4). We have seen recently that Israel was compared to a vine and also to a fig tree and an olive tree, but the one thing always desired was fruit. Compare Ezek. xv and John xv. The most full account of Israel as a vineyard is lesson, and He asks, "What could have No. 10-Stanford to Cincinnati and Maysbeen done more to my vineyard that I have not done in it?" Compare Ps. lxxx, 8, 9; Jer. ii, 21; Hos. x, 1.

The householder's going to a far country for a long time (verse 33: Luke xx, 9) reminds us of the story of the pounds and talents, but there is evidently a backward look here to the days of the prophets, as in Matt. xxiii, 34-39, as well as to this present age A summary of their treatment of the No. Lord and His messengers is found in II Chron. xxxvi, 16, "They mocked the No. messengers of God and despised His words and misused His prophets until. the wrath of the Lord arose against His people, till there was no remedy." He was only seeking that which was His own, fruit from His own vineyard for which He had done all that He could, some gratitude for all His love to them. Surely a reasonable expectation on His part, but this cruel treatment of His servants and thus of Himself was their reply to all that He had done for them. Having sent servant after servant, only to receive the same ill treatment, (verse 37). The record in Mark xii, 6, is "Having yet therefore one Son, His well beloved. He sent Him also last unto them." But they said when they saw Him, "This is the heir; come, let us kill Him and let us seize on His inberitance." This they did, and our Lord asks what shall be done unto such husbandmett. Their reply is in verse 41. So He condemns them out of their own mouth. Then He showed them from their own Scriptures that all their evil conduct had been foreseen by the God who so loved them. But it was as plainly foretold that the rejected one would yet be the honored one. He called their attention to Ps. exviii, 22, no doubt having in mind also Gen. xlix, 24, for there is no more wonderful type of Christ in the whole Bible than Joseph in his sufferings and his glory, his cruel treatment and virtual death at their hands, their rejection of him and his dreams and their literal fulfilling of the same in bowing down to him for their lives after so many years. Our Lord had prob-

The Chess Automaton. Baron von Kempelen, at the beginning of last century, traveled through Europe with what he described as an unbeatable chess automaton in the likeness of a Turk. Kempelen used to conceal a man in the chest on which the Turk was seated, but so ingenious was the contrivance that for a long time everybody was deceived. Napoleon played chess with the pseudo-automaton when stopping at Schoenbrunn after the battle of Wagram. He lost the first game and in the second deliberately made two false moves. The pieces were replaced each time, but on the emperor making a third false move the Turk swept all the pieces off the board. $2.00 -London Chronicle.

Forget Personal Mistakes. s yesterday held one chapter he to forget. It was a black mark across the page of his life's book. Tradition says Paul always observed the anniversary of Stephen's murder. That past brought distress and torment. Instead of a place of refuge, a tower, it became a tomb, hideous and horrid. Is your memory a torment, a hindrance? Have you in youth betrayed honor, soiled a good name, lost a golden opportunity? Did you refuse knowledge, "bull headed," make blunders that cannot be retrieved? Have you sinned against the body, drained away precious nerve force and now find life's reservoir dry, bringing days of bitterness and nights of anguish? Poor Heinrich Heine on his "mattress grave" hears of a German city celebrating his birthday, maiden crowning his marble bust with laurels. "God's mockery weighs heavy on me. Would I were dead! O sorrow, thy name is Heinrich Heine!" With all his brilliant genits he could not forget. Try to forget past attainments-God has noticed them. Forget past sorrows-God has at least permitted them. Forget past mistakes-God has used them. Forget past sins-God has forgiven them. Leave to the past all that belongs there. Even God cannot turn back the universe and give you yesterday.

One way is to avoid him and forget it: the other is to meet him and remember-and make him your friend. Better to have love in your heart than hatred. Emerson said of one he loved, "His heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong." Small souls remember; great souls forgive and forget. Forgiveness is the odor of a trampled flower. Forgetting is the flower rising in new strength to perfume and glorify its surroundings. God Almighty can bring good out of evil. In Greek mythology Lethe was the stream of oblivion in the lower world from which souls drank before passing to Elysium that they might forget all earthly sorrow. The Christian's fountain of Lethe is the grace of God. There the healing waters flow. For "earth has no sorlow that heaven cannot heal."

Twenty Ducklings in a Flock is Plenty as They Are Rather Easily Injured by Overcrowding.

Do not overcrowd the ducklings. Twenty in a flock is quite enough. Their joints are very tender and easily slipped out of place and for this reason it is not safe to keep too many in a yard. It is also a bad plan to allow other stock to run with them.

When frightened a fat duckling is apt to fall over on its back and if not turned over it will lie there and die as it cannot get up from that position by itself.

Here is a good ration for feeding young ducks: Bread soaked in milk, bran of equal quantity mixed to the right consistency with middlings. Ducks must have green food of

CAMPFIRE GIRLS' LAUDABLE WORK

Admitted One of Big Movements of Country.

Organization Primarily Related to Home and Social Life-Gives Honors and Awards Ranks Based Mainly Upon Achievements of Every Day. Firemaker High Order.

When in the spring of 1911 a meeting was held to consider the advisability of forming an organization which should do for girls what the boy scouts were doing for boys the promoters never dreamed that the organization which was brought about-the Campfire Girls-would grow to such splendid proportions and would present such fine possibilities. The Campfire Girl movement today is one of the big things of the country. Among those active in the initial movement were William Chaucey Langdon, Mrs. Charles H. Farnsworth, Dr. and Mrs. Luther H. Gulick, Professor Mary Schenck Woolman, Dr. Anna Brown, Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, Lee F. Hammer, James E. West, Mrs. Augustus Traut and Miss Lina Beard.

Preliminary work was done during the summer and fall. During the following winter a manual was prepared, funds were secured and an organization created and offices opened. It was publicly announced on March 17, 1912: up to Dec. 1, 1913, 4,041 guardians had been appointed, over 60,000 girls enrolled and campfires started in every state and territory in the Union. The

Girls Over Twelve Eligible.

Any girl over twelve years of age may join a campfire and become a Campfire Girl. Local campfires consist of not over twenty members, in charge of a woman who stands as a leader in her community and who is called "the guardian of the fire." In addition to daily activities the girls have weekly meetings and a council fire once a month for the awarding of honors and conferring of ranks.

The organization is primarily related to home and social life, hence it should usually consist of girls of about the same age, who naturally belong together, whose homes are near one another and who like one another. The best results are secured by having the he's finishing up with the chickenpox. guardian and the group socially homo-

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VII.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 16. 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxi, 33-46. Memory Verses, 42-44-Golden Text, Matt. xxi, 42-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

During these last days of the week to the Mount of Olives He spake many things in His farewell messages to this unbelieving nation. Most of them are recorded by Matthew, Mark and Luke, but some by Matthew only. This lesson, concerning the vineyard and the wicked husbandmen, is recorded in each of the first three gospels. It is the old story of the love of God and the base and sinful ingratitude of man. He loves the whole world, and "who- dangerous or disagreeable effects. soever" means any one anywhere in the wide world (John iii, 16). He chose Israel to be a peculiar treasure unto Him above all people, He separated them from all people to be His inheritance. He brought them unto Himself that they might be a people near to Him, and He never dealt so with any other nation. He did this for them that through them other nations might learn to know Him for their good (Ex. xix, 4, 5; II Sam. vii. 22-24; I Kings viii, 53; Ps. exlvii, 20; exlviii, 14; Isa, Ixiii, 11-14.) Israel being set aside for an age, He is gathering from all the nations the willing whosoevers to be a peculiar people unto Himself that through them the world may believe and know Him (Tit. ii, 14; John xvii. 21, 23). The church, these called out ones, is failing as Israel failed, but He shall not fail or be discouraged, and in His time and in His way there shall be seen on earth the consummation of His eternal purpose in a kingdom of righteousness and peace which shall never end.

His dealings with Israel and their treatment of Him were written for our benefit that we might avoid their failures and bear better fruit than they did (I Cor. x, 6-12; Rom. xv, 4). We have seen recently that Israel was compared to a vine and also to a fig tree and an olive tree, but the one No. 9thing always desired was fruit. Compare Ezek. xv and John xv. The most full account of Israel as a vineyard is of it is described somewhat as in our been done more to my vineyard that I have not done in it?" Compare Ps, lxxx, 8, 9; Jer. ii, 21; Hos. x, 1.

The householder's going to a far country for a long time (verse 33; Luke No. 28-Louisville to Richmond via. Rowxx. 9) reminds us of the story of the pounds and talents, but there is evidently a backward look here to the days of the prophets, as in Matt. xxiii, No. 70-Stanford to Richmond, arrives 34-39, as well as to this present age A summary of their treatment of the No. Lord and His messengers is found in II Chron. xxxvi, 16, "They mocked the No. 32-Jacksonville to Cincinnati, arrives messengers of God and despised His words and misused His prophets until He was only seeking that which was cept Sunday. The record in Mark xii, 6, is "Having yet therefore one Son, His ments costing not more than $1; keep well beloved. He sent Him also last unto them." But they said when they saw Him, "This is the heir; come, let us kill Him and let us seize on His inberitance." This they did, and our Lord asks what shall be done unto such husbandmen. Their reply is in verse 41. So He condemns them out of their own mouth. Then He showed them from their own Scriptures that all their evil conduct had been foreseen by the God who so loved them. But it was as plainly foretold that the rejected one would yet be the honored one. He called their attention to Ps. exviii, 22, no doubt having in mind also Gen. xlix, 24, for there is no more wonderful type of Christ in the whole Bible than Joseph in his sufferings and his glory, his cruel treatment and virtual death at their hands, their rejection of him and his dreams and their literal fulfilling of the same in bowing down to him for their lives afting: First, a business letter ordering er so many years. Our Lord had probably in mind also Isa. xxviii, 16: Dan ii, 34. 35, 45. See the references of Peter and Paul to the same great truths concerning Christ as the stone the guardian. Third, an application for rejected, but yet to be honored (Acts

The Chess Automaton. Baron von Kempelen, at the beginning of last century, traveled through Europe with what he described as an unbeatable chess automaton in the likeness of a Turk. Kempelen used to conceal a man in the chest on which the Turk was seated, but so ingenious was the contrivance that for a long time everybody was deceived. Napoleon played chess with the pseudo-automaton when stopping at Schoenbrunn after the battle of Wagram. He lost the McCall's Magazine $1.00 first game and in the second deliberately made two false moves. The pieces were replaced each time, but on the emperor making a third false move the $2.00 Turk swept all the pieces off the board. -London Chronicle.

Reach the World by the Bell System

IN these days of enlightenment, each progressive community welcomes every means of communication with its neighbors.

The moat, the draw-bridge and the outer-wall have been swept away and replaced by highways and railroads extending in every direction.

The Bell Telephone system is the greatest neighbormaker. It not only promotes social and business intercourse in each community, but extends that activity far beyond its borders.

City boundaries and state lines are no barriers to intercommunication in the Bell system, which includes more than 7,500,000 telephones, each one a Long Distance station, and over 12,000,000 miles of telephone highways reaching over 70,000 communities.

I was sitting on the porch with Farmer Griggs, while his daughter. Philena, surrounded by a group of children, was reading to them stories of the age of chivalry. Her father and I could hear her, and while she read how Sir Somebody charged upon Sir Somebody Else in a contest for the Lady What's-her-name I noticed that the farmer's eye lit up, and he seemed to be rapt in reminiscence.

"They don't do sich things now that a-way," he said when the story was finished, "but it's jist as nateral for men to fight for women today as it was then. But they're ginirally young fellers, and the gals is young too. I had a scrap like that when I was a younker. I hearn one day that there was to be a dance in a barn six or seven miles down the road. After supper I started to walk it."

"What," I interrupted, "walk seven miles, dance all the evening and walk seven miles back!"

"Oh, I didn't mind a little thing like that then! I was young and tough. I needed to keep my muscles active; there was so much vim in 'em. When I got to the barn some fiddlers was puttin' some boards on barrels to make asked. music for the people to dance. While they was tunin' up the dancers was

"Purty soon they began to dance, but I didn't know any o' the gals, and I was afeared to ask 'em to dance with me. After awhile a black eyed gal, seein' that I was left out in the cold. said to me, smilin', 'Why don't you dance?' and I says, ''Cause I don't know nobody to dance with.' And she says, 'Won't I do?' And I says, 'You bet.' I put my arm around her waist, and we spun around that barn floor like a flywheel of a cuttin' machine with the beltin' off.

"When the music stopped we went off into a dark corner and set till it commenced ag'in. I axed the gal if she would dance with me some more, and she said she didn't mind. We was gittin' up to start off when a feller came up and said the gal was engaged to him for that dance. She said she didn't remember any engagement with him, so I put my arm around her, and we sailed away.

"Not wishin' to take up the hull of her time, when the dance was over I told her I would go and get a cup o' water-jist for an excuse, you knowthough I would have liked to stay with her the rest of the evenin'. I hadn't gone far before the feller that said the gal was engaged to dance with him come up to me, and he said, says he: "'See here, mister, if you want to monopolize the belle o' this yere county you got to fight for her.' "'I don't want to monopolize any one,' says I, 'leastways any one that don't want to be monopolized, but I don't want none o' your sass.'

"That wa'n't exactly like Sir Something or Other in the story would put it, but I meant jist what he did. The feller didn't throw down his mailed glove, neither, but he was sp'ilin' for a fight, and first thing I knowed he give me a jaw breaker. Then some of the managers o' the ball that was standin' by interfered and said we couldn't fight there; we must go outside. So we went out, and all the men follered us. The gals, findin' theirselves without the men, thort they might as well see the fun, and they come out too.

"The moon was full that night and shone like a big round silver dollar. The feller I was to fight-they called him Buck-was six feet high to my five feet eight. If the gal he was to fight for was the belle o' the county he was the bully. He'd licked every man he could get to fight him just as that Sir What-d'ye-call-him in the story had vanquished all the other knights. I wasn't so big as he was, but I was all fired tough. My arms was like a wildcat's fore legs. When I seen the gals gatherin' around I looked for the one that the fight was about. I saw her standin' with her face squared to the moon, and she give me a smile that put enough vim in me to tackle a

"I couldn't give you much of an account of the fight 'cause it was twenty-five years ago and a rough and tumble scrap anyway. Didn't neither of us know how to box, and we just slammed at each other like two windmills whose wings had got mixed from bein' too close together. Onct in awhile when I felt discouraged under a sledgehammer blow the feller got in on me I'd look for a smile from the girl. She'd give me one, and I'd start in ag'in purty nigh as fresh as ever.

"The big feller was more ponderouslike than me, but he didn't have my steel muscles, and he didn't have my wind. After awhile he began to breathe kind o' hard, and at last he was hittin' wild. I was as fresh as ever, and when I saw he was givin' out I jist waited awhile till he got well tuckered, then landed a blow on his jaw that sent him sprawlin' on

APRICOT CRAPE GOWN.

The box plait, so long treated with disdain, has not only returned, but is occupying a place of popularity in the fashions of the season. On the gown of apricot colored Canton crape illustrated here the foundation skirt is closely box plaited and is topped by a plain little overskirt fastened in front by bullet shaped yellow buttons, edged with white. On the bodice the low shoulder line is evident. High buttoned boots with light tan suede tops add the finishing touch.

BEAUTIFUL LINENS.

Cottons, Too, of Rare Attractiveness

For Summer Suits. This season it is somewhat difficult to distinguish between linen and cotton in the heavier weavings, as they appear so similar, and many of them are provided with the excellent mercerized finish which not only gives them a silky appearance, but renders them less easily creased.

The principal weavings for tailor cut linen suits are the fine twill known as gabardine, ottoman, poplin, tussah and the neat surface that was originally seen in casement cloth. Most of these come in double width (forty inches) and in charming colors-mauve, linen green, dark and saxe blue, delicate gray and biege tints, old rose and shrimp pink.

An ultra smart linen suit was seen the other day made of shrimp pink linen, the skirt with a very deep tunic set in large plaits and finished with white pipings and buttons down the front. The simply cut and loose coatee was also piped. Admirable new touches were provided by the little kilted basque and the striped white and black collar and cuffs. It was as if she put a spur to her brain; there was a moment's silence and the two lads watched her brows drawing together under the concentration of her brain.

"Of course," she said suddenly, and laughed—a spontaneous laughter which seemed to flood her with youthfulness. She turned her blue glance swiftly on the newcomer, the slender boy with the luminous eyes. "You are in the employ of the Marquis Zappi,

"But yes, your majesty. I am the secretary of Monsieur le Marquis." She paused a second, seemed to take stock of the young man, of his looks, his bearing, his accent.

"You are French. Have you a sympathy with the family of my son, with the Bonapartes?"

It was as if a door had been opened into a furnace, so the eyes blazed. "Your majesty, I would give my life for his highness," he said quietly. The impassive face of the young prince turned toward the speaker, and the half-shut heavy glance, which had the Napoleonic gift of holding a picture, rested on him attentively. Louis Bonaparte seemed to remember something.

"What is your name, monsieur?" he asked, and it might have been noticed that his head lifted a little from the pillow as he waited for the answer.

"Francois Beaupre, sire." The young man seemed to be out of breath. "Sire!" Louis Napoleon repeated. And then, "I have seen you before. Where was it? Not in Rome-not in Switzerland-ah!" His hand flew out, and with that Francois was on his knee by the bedside, and had kissed the outstretched thin fingers, and the prince's other hand was on his shoulder fraternally.

"The old chateau of Vicques-my playfellow. Francois. I told you then was going to remember, didn't I?" Louis Napoleon demanded, laughing boyishly. "Mother, he saved my life from the falling wall. Do you remember the story of my runaway trip?" And Hortense, smiling, delighted to see her sad-faced boy so pleased and exhilarated, did remember, and was gracious and grateful to the young Frenchman. The party, caught by the fervor of his manner, stared at him, annoyed as the tale of the emperor, promising so well, halted at its beginning. The man stood as if drawn to his tiptoes, every muscle tense, his head turned toward the doorway, listening.

And suddenly they were aware of a stir, a growing noise: there were galloping horses; there was a jingle of harness, and voices coming nearer. With a step backward the landlord flashed a glance from under bushy brows down the corridor, through the open door at the end, which gave on the court of the inn.

"Mon dieu!" He faced the three, standing startled. He spoke fast and low. "Madame, it is a squad of Austrian soldiers; they are upon us. What can we do?" He hesitated only a second. "Bleu-bleu-my horse-saddled under the tree yonder-if one of the princes-if the prince-" He glanced uncertainly from one lad to the other.
